are trying to quickly understand the implications of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act ("TCJA"), re-evaluating existing projects and considering new investment opportunities. Among them, changes in the repatriation rules could mean that U.S. multinationals will bring a significant amount of cash back to the U.S., potentially boosting M&A activity. This panel will provide a practical overview of certain of the new provisions under the TCJA and how these changes can impact current and prospective transactions.

- John T. Bradford, Liskow & Lewis, Houston, Texas
- Kai R. Kramer, Baker McKenzie, Houston, Texas

10:30 Buy Now, Pay Later – The Latest on Earn-Outs, Deferred Payments and the Use of Non-Cash Consideration in Deals (.75 hr)

Private equity is playing an increasingly important and influential role in the energy industry. The panelists will explain recent and developing trends in M&A transactions that involve private equity buyers and sellers. The panelists will also explore how these trends are impacting non-PE corporate dealmaking and share their predictions for future developments.

Moderator:
- Hillary H. Holmes, Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP, Houston, Texas

Panelists:
- Eduardo Canales, Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP, Houston, Texas
- Regina Gregory, Senior Vice President and General Counsel, Frontier Energy Services, Tulsa, Oklahoma
- Cameron George, Senior Vice President, Sanchez Oil & Gas, Houston, Texas
- Laura Tyson, Managing Director and General Counsel, The Energy and Minerals Group, Houston, Texas

11:15 Antitrust M&A Under the Trump Administration: Impact on Energy Deals (.75 hr)

We have now had over a year to see the Trump Administration’s antitrust team in action. This session will explore its policies and approaches regarding antitrust matters and the potential impact on energy-related M&A deals. The discussion will focus on the people filling the top positions, what recent enforcement decisions tell us about likely priorities for the administration, and the trends affecting the timing and burden of the antitrust review process.

12:00 Lunch

1:00 Break

1:15 Joint Venture Trends (.75 hr)
There have been a number of high-profile O&G joint ventures in the last few years, some of them very large. Not all have gone well. This session will discuss what trends are being seen in O&G joint ventures and what they mean for attorneys.

- Brian P. Fenske, Norton Rose Fulbright US LLP, Houston, Texas
- Quincy J. Jones, Managing Director, FTI Consulting, Inc., Houston, Texas
- Victoria Lazar, Executive Counsel – Mergers & Acquisitions, General Electric Company, Houston, Texas
- David Leathers, Alvarez & Marsal, Houston, Texas

2:00 Delaware Law Update (.5 hr)
This panel will provide an overview of recent M&A developments under Delaware law—from the changing litigation landscape to the ongoing guidance from the Delaware courts on drafting matters. The panel will discuss current Delaware issues and cases from an advisory and litigation perspective—offering key takeaways and practical pointers.

- Melissa A. DiVincenzo, Morris, Nichols, Arsht & Tunnell LLP, Wilmington, Delaware
- Rudolf Koch, Richards, Layton & Finger, Wilmington, Delaware

2:30 Comparative Law – Legal and Practical Differences Between US, UK and Other Major M&A Jurisdictions (.75 hr)
This panel will discuss the keys to a successful cross-border transaction involving US, UK and other jurisdictions. They will highlight the differences between US and UK styles of sale and purchase agreements, the practical effect of these differences to the transaction, and describe some of the primary considerations when structuring and negotiating a successful cross-border transaction.

- Daniel Ro-Trock, Senior Associate General Counsel, Transocean, Houston, Texas
- Simon J. Tysoe, Latham & Watkins LLP, London, United Kingdom

3:15 Break

3:30 Decommissioning Issues and Security Considerations (.75 hr)
Rising offshore decommissioning obligations and regulatory uncertainty are an increasing concern for buyers and sellers. Understanding and securing these obligations often significantly impact transactions. The panelists will discuss top concerns with decommissioning obligations and recent trends in securing this liability.

- Siva Barnwell Adams, Supervising Counsel, Chevron, Houston, Texas
- Amy Hollis, Managing Counsel, Greater Gulf of Mexico, Chevron North America Exploration and Production Company, Covington, Louisiana
- Jonathan A. Hunter, Jones Walker LLP, New Orleans, Louisiana
4:15 Attorney for the Organization: Ethical and Professional Responsibility Considerations (1 hr ethics)

An attorney representing any client wears many hats: advisor, agent, and advocate. An attorney representing an organization must communicate with, and may also act as an arbiter among, the various management and investing constituents of the organization. This discussion will consider some of the ethical questions that confront the attorney for the organization and suggest some approaches to resolving these questions.

- Robert R. Keatinge, Holland & Hart LLP, Denver, Colorado
