

Reka Balogh is acting as in-house counsel for OTP Bank and its affiliates - providing extensive financial services within nine countries in Central and Eastern Europe - advising on syndicated loans, structured finance deals and intra-group transactions. Previously, she spent two years in Luxembourg working as operational lawyer at the European Investment Bank, assisting several investment projects of the EIB in the CEE region, in preparation of the EU enlargement. Earlier in her career, she participated in the dynamic and concentrated privatization period of Hungary, providing legal support for the Privatization Agency as well as gaining experience at Price Waterhouse benefiting from the investor friendly environment offered by Hungary during those years.

Reka received her law degree at Eotvos Lorand University in Budapest, supplemented by an LL.M at Northwestern University, Chicago. She completed her studies by achieving a postgraduate degree in economics at the Budapest University of Economics. In order to receive proper training in her main spare-time activity, horses and riding, she acquired a postgraduate degree in Equine culture and management at the University of Physical Education in Budapest. She likes active, adventurous, close to nature holidays: hiking, cycling, scuba diving.