

53rd Annual Academy of American and International Law
May 15 – June 24, 2016
The Center for American and International Law
Plano, Texas

FACULTY

JACK J. COE, JR., is a Professor at Pepperdine University School of Law. A specialist in private international law, Professor Coe's training includes advanced studies in Europe. He received his LL.M. at Exeter, where he was a Rotary International Graduate Fellow, the Diploma of the Hague Academy of International Law, and a Ph.D. from the London School of Economics. He clerked for the Honorable Richard C. Allison at the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal, the Hague and now consults with governments and multinational corporations in relation to commercial and direct investment disputes under the NAFTA and Bilateral Investment Treaties. He has taught in international programs for Notre Dame and the University of San Diego Law Schools. He has authored numerous articles on arbitration, private international law, and related topics and authored the books Protecting Against the Expropriation Risk in Investing Abroad (co-authored with R.C. Allison) (1993), International Commercial Arbitration-American Principles and Practice in a Global Context (1997), and NAFTA Chapter 11 Reports (ed., with Brower and Dodge) (2006). He also is on the editorial panel for Oxford University Press' investor-state arbitration project. Professor Coe is an elected member of the American Law Institute, and an associate reporter for the Restatement (Third) on the Law of International Commercial Arbitration. He has been chair of the Academic Council of the Institute for Transnational Arbitration and chair of the Disputes Division of the ABA International Law Section. Professor Coe has argued international arbitral claims under NAFTA, and served as an expert in investor-state arbitrations. Coe is also an arbitrator listed on the panel of the International Centre for Dispute resolution (AAA).

DONALD EARL CHILDRESS III, J.D., L.L.M. is Associate Professor of Law at Pepperdine University. Prior to joining the law faculty in 2008, Professor Childress was associated with the international law firm Jones Day in Washington, D.C., where he focused on Supreme Court litigation, general appellate litigation, and significant motions practice in trial litigation. He has significant private practice experience in transnational litigation/arbitration, complex civil procedure, conflict of laws, constitutional law, immigration law, international dispute resolution, federal Indian law, and national security law. Professor Childress co-taught a Supreme Court Litigation course at the Georgetown University Law Center and served as a

"Justice" in the Georgetown University Law Center Supreme Court Institute. While at Duke Law School, he served as editor-in-chief of the Duke Law Journal (Volume 53) and received the faculty award for outstanding achievement in international, transnational, and comparative law. He has also published an edited volume with Cambridge University Press entitled "The Role of Ethics in International Law" and is the American co-editor of the private international law blog ConflictOfLaws.net.

JORDAN W. COWMAN focuses his law practice on transnational projects and transactions, international agreements, public international law and policy, and corporate compliance. He has a broad range of international experience representing and advising governments and international agencies on policy issues, as well as multinationals in industries including: logistics, technology, transportation, energy, defense, manufacturing, retail, banking, food, aviation, chemical, hospitality, insurance, manufacturing and private equity. Jordan represents a broad range of organizations in all facets of management-side labor and employment law. During more than two decades of practice, he has gained a national reputation for his practical, solution-oriented approach to employment law issues. Jordan handles diverse employment matters, including employment discrimination and wrongful termination cases, wage and hour compliance, labor arbitration cases, non-competition cases, and internal corporate investigations. He also counsels employers concerning day-to-day human resources issues as well as myriad legal requirements in the workplace, particularly related to significant operational changes such as mergers, acquisitions, business relocations or reductions in force.

CHARLES B. DOLEAC is a partner in the Portsmouth, New Hampshire law firm of Boynton, Waldron, Doleac, Woodman & Scott. He has developed and moderated applied ethics programs for lawyers, court-appointed mediations and law enforcement professionals in the U.S. and Canada. Mr. Doleac was awarded the Government of Japan's Imperial Decoration, the Order of the Rising Sun, Gold Rays with Rosette, 2011. He was also named the 2005 Citizen of the Year by the Portsmouth, New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce and received the Japanese Foreign Minister's Citation in 2005 for outstanding contributions to furthering mutual understanding between Japan and the United States.

JUDGE DAVID EVANS was elected to the Fifth Court of Appeals in Dallas, Texas in November 2012. Prior to that, he spent eight years presiding over the 193rd District Court in Dallas, including three years as the local administrative district judge. He has also served as judge of the Dallas County Court at Law #1 for four years. Before taking the bench, Justice Evans was an associate with Haynes and Boone (1984–1987) and had a two-person partnership and solo practice (1987–1994). He received his law degree from Southern Methodist University, where he was editor-in-chief of the Journal of Air Law and Commerce.

BRYAN GARNER is the Chief Editor of Black's Law Dictionary. He is the founder of LawProse, Inc., a Dallas Company that provides seminars on clear writing for lawyers and judges. He is the author of Garner's Modern American Usage and Elements of Legal Style. Mr. Garner co-authored two books with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia: Making Your Case: The Art of Persuading Judges and Reading Law: The Interpretation of Legal Texts. He is also a Distinguished Research Professor of Law at Southern Methodist University's Dedman School of Law. After receiving his J.D. degree from the University of Texas in 1984, Mr. Garner clerked for Judge Thomas M.

Reavley of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit and then joined the Dallas firm of Carrington, Coleman, Sloman & Blumenthal. He returned to the University of Texas School of Law as a visiting associate professor and was named director of the short-lived Texas/Oxford Center for Legal Lexicography. In 1990, he left the University and founded LawProse, Inc.

PROF. CHARLES GUSTAFSON is a Professor and former Associate Dean at the Georgetown University Law Center. He teaches Tax Law, Law and Development, International Tax Planning, International Business Transactions, and International Law at the Georgetown University Law Center. He is the co-author of three casebooks on taxation, has been active in various committees on tax and international law of the American Bar Association and the American Law Institute, and serves as an arbitrator in domestic and international contract disputes. Before joining the Georgetown University Law Center faculty in 1972, Professor Gustafson's professional experiences ranged from attorney advisor at State Department to lecturer in law at the Ahmadu Bello University in Zaria, Nigeria, where he assisted with the organization of the first law degree program in that country. He also practiced privately as an associate with the New York firm, Shearman and Sterling, and the D.C. firm, Surrey and Morse. Professor Gustafson has lectured at universities and to professional groups in every inhabited continent.

CHUCK HENDRICKS has practiced in the areas of bankruptcy and debtor-creditor law for over thirty years. He graduated from Wheaton College in 1977 and SMU Dedman School of Law in 1981. He clerked at the Dallas Court of Appeals (1981-1982) and was an associate at Woodburn & Sullivan (1982-1985) before joining what has now become Cavazos, Hendricks, Poirot & Smitham, P.C. in 1985. He is Board Certified by the American Bankruptcy Institute in both Business (1995) and Consumer (1994) Bankruptcy Law. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the John C. Ford Inn of Court, and has been listed in Best Lawyers in America.

SUSAN L. KARAMANIAN is Associate Dean for International and Comparative Legal Studies and Professional Lecturer in Law at the George Washington University Law School. She joined the Law School in 2000, after a 14-year career at Locke Lord Bissell & Liddell, LLP in Dallas, Texas. While in private practice, Dean Karamanian represented foreign and domestic clients in a variety of commercial disputes. She also maintained an active pro bono docket, in which she represented inmates on Texas death row in their post-conviction appeals. Dean Karamanian has served as Vice President of the American Society of International Law. She is a member of the board of the Center for American and International Law, the Texas Applesseed Foundation, the Washington Foreign Law Society, and the Friends of the Law Library of Congress. In 2009, she was elected President of the Washington Foreign Law Society. A Rhodes Scholar, she previously served on the board of the Association of American Rhodes Scholars. She is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the American Council on Germany, and a fellow of the American Bar Foundation and the Texas Bar Foundation.

MICHAEL P. MASLANKA is an Assistant Professor at UNT Dallas School of Law. He joined the law school after approximately 30 years in private practice. He is the author of the “Maslanka Field Guide” series on employment law; has written his monthly “Work Matters” column for In-House Texas. He opened the Dallas office of Constangy Brooks & Smith, LLP in January 2011. He also served as a Field Attorney for the National Labor Relations Board and is Board Certified in Labor and Employment Law by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization.

TIMOTHY MEYER is a Professor of Law and Enterprise Scholar at Vanderbilt Law School. He previously served on the University of Georgia Law faculty as an associate professor teaching International Business Transactions, Constitutional Law, International Environmental Law and International Trade. His scholarly interests focus on international lawmaking and compliance. Professor Meyer's recent research examines the interaction of international and local rules on energy subsidies, the role of science in international lawmaking, the relationship between international energy institutions and climate change institutions, the codification of customary international law and the creation of non-binding "soft law" obligations, rather than binding treaty obligations. He is also co-author of a book on international soft law (with Andrew Guzman). Before joining Academia, Professor Meyer, practiced law at the U.S. Department of State Office of the Legal Adviser, where he represented the United States in commercial arbitrations and real property transactions all over the world. In addition, Meyer represented the United States in negotiations with a number of foreign governments on diplomatic law issues. He earned his B.A. and M.A. in history from Stanford University, where he graduated Phi Beta Kappa, and his J.D. and Ph.D. in Jurisprudence and Social Policy from the University of California, Berkeley.

MARK MICHELS is a director in the Discovery practice of Deloitte Transactions and Business Analytics LLP. He advises clients on electronic discovery related to complex litigation, commercial disputes, and internal investigations. He has experience in devising multi-faceted corporate discovery programs, including developing compliance processes, and evaluating and implementing solutions for collection, processing, review, and production of diverse data.

DANIEL PICKELNER is an international corporate attorney with eighteen years of in-house experience with both large and small global companies. Currently, he is the Director of Legal and Risk Management for the Americas at Wood Mackenzie Inc., an energy and mining research and consulting firm based in the United Kingdom. Prior to joining Wood Mackenzie, Daniel was Chief Regional Counsel, Americas Division at Commercial Metals Company. Daniel also worked at CARBO Ceramics Inc. as Counsel and Assistant Chief Compliance Officer. He started his legal career at Shell Oil Company. Daniel received his JD and MBA at the University of Houston and his Bachelor of Arts at American University in Washington, D.C. Daniel is a Docent at Holocaust Museum Houston and serves on the Board of Directors at Houston Hillel.

STANLEY SIEGEL is Professor of Law Emeritus at the New York University School of Law. Following three years of practice with the Air Force General Counsel's Office, he joined the University of Michigan Law School faculty. He was the draftsman of the Michigan Corporation Law. He next was a professor at UCLA Law School, and came to NYU School of Law in 1986. At the Law School, Siegel introduced the course in Corporate Finance, one of the first such courses centered on contemporary financial theory offered in a law school curriculum in the United States. His courses crossed the borders of economics, finance, and accounting. Siegel has been involved with computers and legal education for more than four decades, beginning with the writing of the original Air Force contract for the Key-Words-in-Context legal search system (KWIC), which ultimately became LEXIS. He has served on the boards of the Lexis Electronic Author's Press (LEAP) and the Center for Computer Assisted Legal Instruction (CALI). In 1993, Professor Siegel joined the newly-established Central European University in Budapest as one of its founding faculty members. He held the first of the regular distinguished visiting appointments in the Legal Studies Department. He has also been a visiting professor at Stanford, the University of London, the University of Konstanz, and Tel Aviv University. As an active member of both the legal and accounting professions, Siegel periodically presents comments and proposals to the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB), and he served as the liaison on international accounting matters between the American Bar Association and the FASB. He has written articles or book chapters on comparative company law, accounting standards-setting in the United States and the European Union, and the effects of contemporary financial theory and computer applications on financial reporting.

JEFFREY SPEARS is a Principal with Mercury SGS and focuses his efforts on assisting businesses entering new foreign markets, establishing appropriate compliance regimes, and identifying and vetting in-country attorneys and representatives. Prior to joining Mercury SGS, Mr. Spears served in several positions with L-3 Communications Corporation, including Vice President and Senior Counsel of the L-3 Services Group headquartered in Alexandria, Virginia. He was also Sector Vice President for Legal & Contracts for the L-3 Platform & Logistics Solutions Sector headquartered in the DFW area. Mr. Spears began his legal career as a Judge Advocate with the United States Army and currently serves as an Adjunct Professor at the Defense Institute of International Legal Studies (DIILS) in Newport, Rhode Island where he focuses on topics related to internal security matters and compliance with the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. He has published articles on topics including the oil industry, humanitarian law, and rule of law operations, and is the past editor and chapter author of the U.S. Army's Domestic Operational Law Handbook.

ROBERT WILKINSON has been a faculty member of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University since 2009. He currently teaches graduate courses on international negotiation and global aid management. He has taught in executive education and leadership programs for Harvard University and the White House. Mr. Wilkinson consults for a range of major clients including PricewaterhouseCoopers, General Mills, Wellington Management Investors, the Omidyar Group, the US Office of Personnel Management (OPM), the US Agency for International Development (USAID), the World Wildlife Fund (WWF), the National Urban League, and the International Monetary Fund (IMF). Previously, Rob held senior management positions in Oxfam, the United Nations and the Department for International Development (DFID), where he successfully led global aid programs in complex environments. Field locations include Nicaragua, Angola, Rwanda, Burundi, DRC, Kenya, Sierra Leone, Ethiopia, Uganda, Cambodia, Laos and Kashmir. He earned his Master's Degree from Stanford University, and a Bachelor's Degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). He also holds a certificate in Senior Organizational Management from the Ashridge Business School in London.