2013 Hartrick Symposium: Career Paths for Young Attorneys in the Energy Sector

---

March 1-2, 2013

The University of Tulsa College of Law
Tulsa, Oklahoma

Two recognized leading organizations in energy law education are bringing a stellar lineup of topics and presenters to the historic "Oil & Gas Capital of the World" – Tulsa, Oklahoma – for a discussion about potential careers for law students and young attorneys in the new, dynamic energy sector.

The kick-off event for the conference will be an evening reception on Friday, March 1, dedicating the inaugural Award for Distinguished Service in Energy Law to The Honorable Joseph W. Morris.

Tuition for the entire conference is free for law students and professors, $25 for lawyers licensed for less than 6 years.

MODERATOR

Curtis R. Frasier, Executive Vice President & General Counsel, Upstream Americas & Head of Legal USA, Shell Oil Company, Houston, Texas

PANELISTS

Richard C. Vint, Chief Attorney, Exxon Mobil Corporation, Houston, Texas

David H. Sweeney, Vice President Legal and General Counsel, Van Dyke Energy Company, Houston, Texas

Louis J. Davis, Baker & McKenzie, Houston, Texas

Richard Hathcoat, Caldwell Hathcoat LLC, Boulder, Colorado

Audience Q&A*10:15 BREAK*10:30 THE LAND PROFESSIONAL

This panel will cover the land negotiation and transactional work of the In-House Landmen and private contractor Landman/Broker. Many recent law graduates go to work as landmen. Many remain landmen, often gravitating from the land company brokers to in-house positions. Many landmen use their experience as an entry into a law firm to do oil and gas work. The land department is also one of those areas that provides entry into the oil company directly from law school.

MODERATOR

Bob Costello, Senior Division Counsel, Chesapeake Energy Corporation, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

PANELISTS

Kyle Gallman, Land Representative, Chevron North American Land, Lafayette, Louisiana

Joyce Trew, EQT Production, Washington, Pennsylvania

1:15 PRESENTATION OF THE 2013 HARTRICK SCHOLAR*1:20 INTERNATIONAL PETROLEUM: TRANSACTIONS AND NEGOTIATION

Have laptop, will travel. This panel will provide an in-depth analysis of the ins and outs of working on international energy transactions. While there is not always a need to be on location, the complexities of international and cross border projects require additional skill sets and flexibility to deal with multiple legal systems, languages and cultures. Our panelists will discuss how they came into their international careers, and the major challenges that face them in their day to day work. Delegates will also learn what attributes are most beneficial to help a young energy professional pursue and develop an international career.

MODERATOR

Steven P. Otilar, Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP, Houston, Texas
