Police Resource Allocation and Deployment

Hosted by the Jupiter Police Department

February 6-9, 2017

Jupiter Police Department
210 Military Trail
Jupiter, FL 33458

Register Now! theilea.org

Highlights

- Creating a data-driven staffing request based on agency-specific data
- Recognizing data streams leading to better management decisions
- Tailoring staff deployment to agency priorities and needs
- Examining the impact of management decisions on staffing

What People Say

“Excellent course! Glad to get information along with the exercise. Very helpful in allowing me to retain the knowledge.”

“Quite possibly the most applicable class I have had as a police administrator.”
COURSE OVERVIEW
As police budgets shrink or stagnate, and workload demands increase, law enforcement agencies are often asked to “do more with less.” Improving the effectiveness and efficiency of patrol staffing, deployment and scheduling is a critical task. This workshop will provide law enforcement managers with tools and techniques to better utilize human resources. In this hands-on course, participants will build an Excel workbook containing the necessary formulas to conduct a data-driven staffing study.

Participants are required to bring a laptop computer, preloaded with Microsoft Excel, and an external mouse. A working knowledge of Microsoft Excel is strongly recommended.

TOPICS
• Examining the impact of management decisions on staffing
• Creating a data-driven staffing request based on agency-specific data
• Tailoring staff deployment to agency priorities and needs
• Recognizing data streams leading to better management decisions
• Calculating unique shift relief factors for patrol divisions
• Measuring return on investment (ROI) made by funding sources
• Recognizing conflicting objectives in resource deployment

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?
Police executives and managers; human resources personnel; risk management staff; budget and finance; crime analysts

TUITION / HOURS / CREDIT
$525 per person (includes all materials)
8:30am-4:30pm
40 hour credit toward mandatory retraining requirement (not eligible for salary incentive payments)

FACULTY
Timothy Freesmeyer is President of Etico Solutions, a training and consulting corporation in Macomb, IL. After spending 5 years in faculty and administrative roles in higher education, Tim founded Etico Solutions with a concentration on resource allocation, resource deployment and staff scheduling training and consulting. Tim is past Director of Management Training for Northwestern University’s Center for Public Safety, and a former police officer in Normal, IL. He provides services to police agencies across the country.

Register Now! theilea.org