| 8:00  | WELCOME AND INTRODUCTION TO THE CONFERENCE | — Alex Cestero, Vice President and Co-General Counsel, Weatherford International, Ltd., Houston, Texas
— Michael B. Bennett, Baker Botts L.L.P., Houston, Texas |
| 8:05  | OILFIELD SERVICE COMPANIES THROUGH AN INVESTMENT BANKER’S EYES | This session will discuss investment banking issues and trends as they affect the oilfield services sector, with a focus on creation of shareholder value, M&A, valuations and due diligence.
— Andrew C. Schroeder, Managing Director, Simmons & Company, Houston, Texas
— Pearce W. Hammond, Managing Director, Simmons & Company, Houston, Texas |
| 9:00  | MEDIA ISSUES FOR OILFIELD SERVICES COMPANIES
What’s Next: Anticipating Future Crises and Controversies | Effective crisis and litigation communications now demand risk management strategies to anticipate the issues that will impact corporate reputations tomorrow. As the social media, volatile public affairs debates on energy policy, and a tireless plaintiffs' bar up the stakes exponentially, the challenge for companies in the oil and gas sector and their counselors is to put rapid response systems in place well ahead of need in order to minimize foreseeable exposures and bullet-proof their global brands.
— Richard S. Levick, Chairman & CEO, Levick Strategic Communications, Washington, D.C. |
| 9:45  | TRADE COMPLIANCE IN THE OILFIELD SERVICES SECTOR
Assessing the Risks and Calibrating Your Compliance Program Accordingly | In-house and external counsel discuss current risks in import / export control, sanctions, and anti-boycott compliance specific to the oilfield services sector and how to craft fit-for-purpose compliance strategies to mitigate these risks and perhaps identify competitive advantages for your business.
— Natalia Shehadeh, Director of the Trade Compliance Group, Weatherford International, Houston, Texas
— Daniel M. Fisher-Owens, Berliner, Corcoran & Rowe, Washington, D.C. |
| 10:30 | BREAK | |
10:45  ADVANCED DATA ANALYTICS IN RISK MANAGEMENT AND FRAUD AND BRIBERY DETECTION
Service companies increasingly struggle with managing and monitoring risk across large and complex data sources and geographically widespread operations. This panel will lead with a demonstration of some of the latest analytics techniques and technology, followed by a discussion of capabilities, limitations and the associated legal issues to consider when leveraging these techniques to manage fraud, compliance and other areas of risk.

MODERATOR

PANELISTS
— Scott Clary, Principal, Forensic Technology & Discovery Services, Ernst & Young, Houston, Texas
— Jay G. Martin, Vice President, Chief Compliance Officer, Senior Deputy General Counsel, Baker Hughes, Houston, Texas
— Todd Jones, Internal Audit Manager, Shell Oil Company, Houston, Texas

12:00  HOSTED LUNCHEON - CYBER CRIME AND WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

Sponsored by

1:30  CONCURRENT SESSION

LEGISLATIVE OUTREACH - SHOULD YOU HAVE A LOBBYING PROGRAM?
With the increased complexity of industry issues and relationships, foreign, domestic, and social, could (and should) oilfield services companies be more proactive in influencing legislators? What is the cost/benefit analysis of relying on the exploration and production companies to devise strategy and exert influence at state and federal levels versus direct action by oilfield services companies?

— Andrew P. Biar, President, Strategic Public Affairs, Houston, Texas

PANELISTS
— Stuart Kemp, Assistant General Counsel, Environmental Law Practice Group, Halliburton Company, Houston, Texas
— Samuel A. Giberga, Senior Vice President and General Counsel, Hornbeck Offshore, Covington, Louisiana

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY CONSIDERATIONS IN THE OIL PATCH
With the increased sophistication in technology innovation and know-how developed by oilfield services companies, IP rights have come to the forefront as have IP issues: Have the types of IP rights oilfield services companies need to identify and protect changed? Has there been in paradigm shift in ownership right expectations? Does the design of your new widget or approach belong to your company, to a vendor of a key part, to the operator employing your company or some combination of the foregoing? Does it matter if the widget or process was designed in the United States or at the work site in another country? What is the legal precedent in the U.S. and abroad? These and other issues will be highlighted and discussed.

— Peter E. Mims, Vinson & Elkins LLP, Houston, Texas
— Bob McAughan, Sutton McAughan Deaver PLLC, Houston, Texas
