11:00 BREAK

11:20 LAWYERS, GUNS AND MONEY: THE SEARCH FOR ETHICAL INSPIRATION IN ROCK AND ROLL

Rock and roll music has survived, if not thrived, for generations. Behind its enduring appeal is an assortment of performance and musical styles that have struck the right chord with the right audience at the right time. The commercial and cultural success is undeniable, but when you peer deeply into the lyrics, are there any ethical or moral messages to be found?

U.S. TRANSACTIONAL MODULE

David Sweeney, Module Chair
Associate General Counsel & Chief Compliance Officer
Lukoil - Houston, Texas

8:30 FRACTURING RELATIONSHIPS – THE IMPACT OF RISK AND RISK ALLOCATION ON UNCONVENTIONAL OIL & GAS PROJECTS

Unconventionals are different. Time-tested methods of conceptualizing projects, project development, and accompanying risk (and risk allocation) that have served the exploration and production business so well for so long do not appropriately allocate risk in an unconventional

FINANCE MODULE

Shaun Finnie, Module Chair
Senior Managing Director
Evercore Partners - Houston, Texas

8:30 DIFFERENT FORMS OF PRIVATE EQUITY FINANCING FOR OIL AND GAS

Our panel will review current trends in private equity in the oil and gas industry as well as looking in depth at traditional venture equity financing, private equity financing of working interest investments, key factors determining fundraising success or failure, and divorce and pre-nup arrangements in the funds area.

Our panel will take a fresh look at the costs and benefits of unconventional resource development and the conflicts that can arise between parties in an effort to explore new, and old, methods of allocating risk contractually, whether through acquisition, farmout, joint operating agreement, joint venture, or otherwise. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>— Preston Cody, Senior Managing Consultant – Upstream Energy, Wood Mackenzie, Houston, Texas</li> <li>— Michael P. 10:00 PREFERENTIAL RIGHTS TO PURCHASE: THE BASICS, AND THE MOST INTERESTING PREF RIGHTS CASE YOU’VE NEVER HEARD ABOUT The presentation will begin with a discussion of the fundamentals of preferential rights to purchase found in many oil and gas agreements, an issue with which many lawyers have to grapple on a regular basis. Our speaker will go on to illustrate the practical operation of preferential rights by means of a case study drawn from the real life experience of a transaction involving several hundred million dollars worth of Permian Basin properties, numerous pref right twists and turns, two TRO hearings, and a summary judgment application in a courtroom in a sleepy New Mexico town unaccustomed to such drama and excitement. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>— Robert J. Important issues before the Court include the power of the EPA to retroactively revoke permits previously approved by other agencies and whether the federal Clean Air Act preempts attempts to regulate emission levels under state tort law. This panel will provide insight regarding the manner in which the Supreme Court will address these critical issues. The panel will also discuss the potential resolutions of these disputes, as well as the impact of those on the energy industry. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>— Henry N. Differences can be seen in global issues such as greenhouse gas controls and carbon markets, in the regulation of hydraulic fracturing in various parts of the world, in permitting and approval issues for energy projects, in new EPA and other federal rules in the US, and in a renewed focus on process safety issues and requirements. FEDERAL OIL AND GAS LESSEES, DUE PROCESS, AND RETROACTIVE CHANGES TO THE RULES OF THE GAME Across the board, federal oil and gas lessees are finding themselves subject to retroactive changes by the Department of the Interior to critical agency policies and regulatory interpretations. While the specific issues are diverse (lease maintenance, calculation of royalties, decommissioning of wells, etc.), the agency’s approach is consistent: in a series of recent administrative decisions, DOI has found that it is free to break from years of established agency practices and apply new standards retroactively. This presentation will examine these recent developments in the light of fundamental administrative and constitutional law principles that govern federal agency action. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>— Sarah Y. ## PLENARY SESSIONS

1:30 FRAC MONITORING IN SHALE DEVELOPMENT PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

Horizontal drilling and hydraulic fracturing have fathered a rebirth in the North American oil and gas business. Developments in monitoring well completions have given new insight into what is actually happening at the reservoir, leading to more efficient exploitation of the resource. This talk will focus on the technology of frac monitoring, present, past and future, and what it means to the industry.

— Peter Duncan, President & CEO, MicroSeismic, Inc., Houston, Texas

2:30 LEGAL ETHICS: MISSTEPS AND SLIP UPS

Using real examples, and with the benefit of hindsight, Professor Smith will demonstrate how attorneys can in the heat of the moment misjudge an ethical question, or perhaps not even realize that an ethical question exists.

— Professor N. Gregory Smith, Louisiana State University School of Law, Baton Rouge, Louisiana
