9:10 RESPONDING TO ANTI-DEVELOPMENT VOICES

The shale boom has transformed America's future in many different ways, but the practicalities of production of hydrocarbons from shale encounter opposition from NGOs, the public, and government at local and, in some cases, state level. Is this just a matter of poor industry PR? Are there genuine concerns which industry is not addressing properly? Our speaker will explore how industry should respond to an evolving anti-development sentiment.

- Mark K. Boling, President – VP Development Solutions, Southwestern Energy Company, Houston, Texas

- Jason Hutt, Bracewell & Giuliani LLP, Washington, DC

2:30 CHALLENGING “SUE AND SETTLE” RESTRICTIONS ON RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT

In a series of decisions in the Western District of Pennsylvania and the Third Circuit, Minard Run Oil Co. and the Pennsylvania Independent Oil and Gas Association (PIOGA) demonstrated industry’s ability to challenge “sue and settle” agreements in which federal agencies may unduly accommodate plaintiffs who oppose development, and to challenge NEPA and other regulatory delays. Using the Minard Oil litigation as a case study, our speakers will demonstrate the importance of prompt industry intervention in ENGO suits, the circumstances in which “sue and settle” agreements can be challenged, and how you can get a preliminary injunction, and even permanent relief, allowing development to proceed.
